Game changer

Edito

Grâce à une dynamique collective portée par l'Alliance et à l'implication créative de ses adhérents, filateurs, tisseurs et tricoteurs, la présence du Lin sur les saisons automne hiver est en train de faire bouger les idées reçues.

Les demi-saisons - de plus en plus longues - sont un terrain particulièrement propice qui pourrait faire de cette fibre un « game changer ». Excellence des savoir-faire, qualités environnementales prouvées, thermorégulation naturelle et propositions esthétiques hors des sentiers battus : le Lin fidélise les aficionados et éveille l'appétence de jeunes consommateurs sensibles à de nouveaux narratifs.

Thanks to a collaborative effort spearheaded by the Alliance and the creative involvement of its members, spinners, weavers and knitters, Linen's presence in the Autumn-Winter seasons is shaking up preconceived ideas.

Half-seasons - which are becoming longer and longer - are particularly fertile ground, and could turn this fiber into a game changer. With its excellent craftsmanship, proven environmental qualities, natural thermoregulation and unusual aesthetic qualities, Linen has won the loyalty of aficionados and aroused the interest of young consumers sensitive to new concepts.

Flax Fibre: The 2024 Flax area under cultivation is setting a new record in response to the market

Flax sowing in the spring began later than usual for our crop. This is due to a rainy start to the spring, which slowed down agricultural work that was completed at the end of May, whereas it is normally done by mid-April. While this discrepancy slightly reduces the plant growth cycle, it will not necessarily affect future yields if the flax emerges quickly and evenly.

According to the estimates of the Flax-Linen and Hemp Economic Observatory, the growing area of European Flax™ spring Flax and winter Flax combined will account for at least 180,000 hectares for the 2024 harvest. This represents a large increase compared with 2023 (+20%) and even with the record harvest of 2020 and its 163,000 hectares (+10%).

This sharp increase can be explained by the will of this North-Western European sector to meet market demand, which has suffered from four consecutive disappointing harvests that also resulted in a lack of material, and also by the attractiveness of the remuneration for farmers.

To date, yields have not yet been defined in terms of fibre volume and quality, since the agricultural cycle is still in its early phases.

Also, long fibre yields from different harvests have varied as much as by a factor of three over the past decade, depending on the weather during the one hundred day cycle of the Flax plant, from sowing to harvest, and during retting.

It will be possible to provide an approximate assesment of the situation in the next communication from the Flax-Linen and Hemp Economic Observatory in July 2024.

As for prices of European Flax™ long fibers on the market, the curve continued to increase in the first quarter in the context of an imbalance in supply/demand.

In March, the average price across all qualities and all production regions of European Flax™ fibre produced by European scutchers (France, Belgium, Netherlands) reached €9.08/kg, representing a year-on-year increase of 55%.

Facing the challenge of satisfying supply, the European sector is continuing its significant R&D efforts by working with technical agricultural institutes: Arvalis in France and Inagro in Belgium.

Arvalis conducted R&D programs in France focusing on genomic research, physiological studies of flax fibre and digital phenotyping tools.

European Flax™ 2009 -2024 area under cultivation in hectares

Scutching is the process whereby the components of Flax straw are separated out: short fibres, long fibres, shives, seeds, through mechanical crushing and threshing.*

This term also refers to the industrial facility where this operation is conducted

Fibre from Northwestern European scutchers is European Flax™ certified, guaranteeing a plant fibre from agriculture that is eco-friendly, irrigation-free barring exceptional circumstances, and GMO-free.*

Bcomp x EcoTechnilin x Alliance for European Flax-Linen & Hemp

Le nouveau stand de l'Alliance fait dialoguer subtilement la juxtaposition entre Lin, Chanvre et bois : synonyme de créativité, naturalité et authenticité.

En partenariat avec nos membres spécialistes du matériau composite, les designers ont imaginé une partie du décor composée de panneaux 100% biosourcés :

- Panneaux en Kairlin®, fournis par la société EcoTechnilin, conçu à base de Lin, à la fois rigide, esthétique et recyclable. (Il s'agit d'une alternative écologique pour des applications signalétiques et du mobilier.)
- Panneaux en ampliTex™ et powerRibs™, technologies de renforcement et d'allègement à base de fibres naturelles développées par l'entreprise Bcomp qui réduisent l'impact environnemental, offrent un amortissement des vibrations et un look unique dans des applications de haute performance (intérieur automobile, sport automobile, sport, infrastructure, aérospatiale et même à l'espace).

The Alliance's new stand creates a subtle dialogue between Flax-Linen, Hemp and wood, which are synonymous with creativity, naturalness and authenticity.

In partnership with our members who are specialists in composite materials, part of the decor is made of 100% bio-sourced panels:

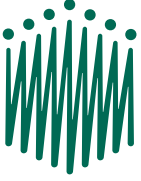

- EcoTechnilin provided Kairlin® panels made from plant fibres (Flax or Hemp), which are rigid, aesthetic (available in three colours, with visible fibres) and recyclable (an eco-friendly alternative for signage, POS and furniture applications).
- Bcomp's AmpliTex™ and powerRibs™ panels use natural fibre-based technology to strengthen and lighten materials, while reducing environmental impact, offer vibration damping and a unique look for high performance applications (automotive interiors, motor sport, sports, infrastructure, aerospace and even space).
